CANADIAN CLUB TO HEAR CAPT. CARPENTER V.C.

Entire Upper Balcony to Be Occupied by Students

R.V.C. TO BE PRESENT

All Lectures Suspended in the Faculties of Arts, Science and Law

When Capt. Carpenter, V.C., the hero of the famous Zeebrugge naval raid, appears at His Majesty's on Thursday next at 4.00 p.m., he will be greeted by 500 McGill students, who will occupy the entire top gallery. Capt. Carpenter's illustrated lecture of one of the most heroic exploits in the history of the British Navy (for his part in which he received the V.C.) is said by those who have heard it to be one of the best lectures ever given in Montreal.

With the object of giving the students the one and only chance of hearing this lecture, the Canadian Club, through the Students' Council, have contracted for the entire gallery at a nominal charge of twenty-five cents per seat, plus five cents war tax (the cheapest seats elsewhere in the house are seventy-five cents, plus war tax); while the deans of the various faculties have given their full approval of the scheme by granting a suspension of lectures at 3.30 p.m. in Arts, Science and Law. In Medicine it was found that the suspension of lectures for all years was impracticable owing to work in the clinics, etc. Nevertheless, it will be possible for many of the students, especially those in the First Year, to join in with the other faculties.

Capt. Carpenter, who was recently the guest of the Governor-General, at Ottawa, has been touring the eastern portion of Canada, and the United States on behalf of the British Government, and everywhere has been greeted by huge audiences.

One theatre in the City of Providence, with a capacity of 2,500, sold 18,000 rush tickets, while another in New York, with a capacity of 3,000, disposed of 22,000 tickets. During his previous visit to Montreal he addressed private audiences, such as the University Club, Mount Royal Club, Women's Club, etc., and it was owing to these engagements that McGill was unable to secure his services, even for a forty-five minute address.

Tickets for Thursday's meeting will be allotted to the various faculties, also to the R.V.C., at once and will be for sale through the members of the Canadian Club Executive, and the presidents of the various Years by this afternoon. No trouble is anticipated in disposing of the tickets, but in justice to those who have gone to great trouble, and inconvenience, and who have assumed the responsibility; also in view of the fact that McGill was given precedence over other outside organizations that had made application for the seats, the students are asked to get busy at once and buy their tickets so that there will not be a rush at the last minute.

All receipts will be used in aid of the men of the Dover Patrol.

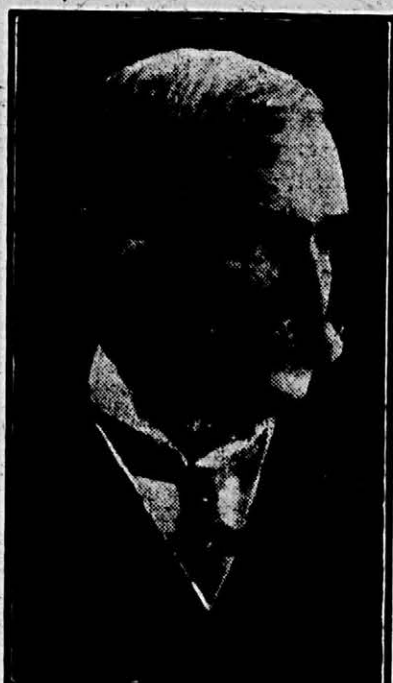

FATAL ACCIDENT AT UNION.

On Saturday night the Union was the scene of a very sad accident, from the effects of which, Mrs. Chapman, wife of the janitor, died this morning. The cause of the accident was the explosion of one of the boilers, which scalded her severely about the head and arms.

This morning Mrs. Chapman passed away at the Royal Victoria Hospital. Her presence will be much missed about the Union. Her kindness in assisting at the various social functions made her popular with the students. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Chapman.

The funeral will take place from Wray's, on University Street, at 10 a.m., to-morrow.

ARTS '19 MAN IS AWARDED DECORATION

L. H. Biggar Received Honor on 20th Birthday

OF 42nd BATTALION

One of Few Canadian Officers to Sign Gold Book

W. H. Biggar, K.C., vice-president and general counsel of the Grand Trunk Railway System, has just received notification that his son, Lieut. Louis H. Biggar, Arts '19, of the 42nd Battalion, was awarded the Military Cross on December 10. Mr. Biggar has two sons at the front, the other being Capt. Winchester H. Biggar, Arts '17. Both these officers went overseas in 1916. In October, 1919, Lieut. Louis Biggar was shell shocked at Passchendaele. After being treated in a hospital at La Touquet, France, he was sent to the Prince of Wales, Hospital, London. He made a quick recovery, re turning to France in February, 1918 and was assigned to the post of chief Signal Officer of the 42nd Battalion. He later took the first class Army Signalling course, receiving a certificate that he had passed "with distinction." The splendid work done by the 42nd Battalion in the last great offensive is described by Lieut. Biggar in one of his letters.

"I certainly had an interesting and exciting summer," he says. "From my course I went back to the Amiens show, but they kept me out of the line there. Then we moved to Arras and went over at Monchy and Jysaw Wood. It was in our attack on Jysaw Wood that the Hun surrendered so freely. From there we went down and attacked across the Canal du Nord, through Burion village and wood, right up to the Douai-Cambrai road due north of Cambrai. It was in the latter stage of this attack that we had such a bad time, right near the main road. Another brigade went through us and took Cambrai with little opposition. Then we had a rest and when the Hun began to weaken they took us in forries up beyond Douai and Denain and we attacked and cleared the Forest de Raismes right up to Conde, north of Valenciennes. Then we marched down through Valenciennes and up the road to Mons and ended our fighting in a good scrap, resulting in the capture of that place on the 11th. Quite a summer."

Lieut. Biggar entered Mons with the advance guard of the 42nd Highlanders, and was one of the few Canadian officers who had the honour of signing the Gold Book. The last letter from him received here is dated at Nivelles, Belgium, a short distance northwest of Mons, and states that the battalion is moving towards Germany. Lieut. Biggar celebrated his twentieth birthday on December 12, two days after receiving the Military Cross, and that he should have come through such severe fighting unscathed and with distinction will be gratifying to his many friends here.

Dr. MacNaughton acted as chairman of the meeting, and after a short address, introduced Sir William Peterson as a great scholar of Greek thought and Greek literature. Principal Peterson spoke of the

THE ROOTERS' CLUB.

The announcement that the Students' Council has decided to appoint an undergraduate to the position of leader of the Rooters' Club will meet, we are convinced, with the general approval of the students. The next decision to be settled is "Who is the man?" and this is one that requires a good deal of careful consideration.

There are plenty of men, no doubt, who are able to get up before a crowd of their fellow-students and give a college "yell" in fairly passable fashion, but very few possess the qualities necessary to take in hand an organization such as the "Rooters' Club," work up the essential enthusiasm among the members, see that they attend the practices, and provide songs and parodies. All that we have enumerated is important when one is making the choice of a man for such a position as the one we are discussing, but we should say without hesitation that the most important quality is the happy knack that some men have of crystallizing the latent feelings of a number of listeners, making each individual realize that he is but part of a corporate body and that he must do his best to make himself worthy of it. "Leadership" is what is needed and no mere singer of songs will "fill the bill"; a man of forceful character, who can sway the crowd of somewhat unruly nature which usually turns out at practices of college "rooters." We trust that the choice of the Council will fall upon a man who will make a thorough success of the revived organization.

THE CLASS HOCKEY SCHEDULE.

The coming week is to be an idle one for the senior hockey team, and the thoughts of hockey enthusiasts naturally turn to the question of class teams. It seems that the time is ripe for the drawing up of the schedule and the appointing of practice hours, in order that the games may be played off before the advent of the warm weather. Somehow, for the last two years the inter-class league has been unable to complete its schedule early enough to have the final games upon the Campus Rink, and this, perhaps, has prevented the attendance being as large as might have been expected. It is to be hoped that this year all of the games will take place on the college ice, and that there will be no defaulted games, due to a hasty re-arrangement of the list.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

The news of the sudden illness of the Principal will, no doubt, come as a shock to our readers, as there was no preparation for the stroke suffered by Sir William in the way of previous ill-health. We trust that encouraging reports will come from the hospital and that we shall be able to-morrow morning to publish the news that his condition is improved.

glorious Hellenic Period, of the civilizing influence which they brought down to our present day and the great debt that civilization owes to them as a result of this influence. Principal Peterson then quoted a few lines from Homer which exemplified Greek ideals, and remarked that this same quotation had been presented to E. Venizelos while at London by one of the great English scholars. The speaker then pointed out how great a statesman Greece possessed in E. Venizelos and expressed the hope that justice and freedom should be given to enslaved Hellenism. Principal Peterson son thanked the audience for their attention, and withdrew amid loud applause.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Kyriakidis, a great friend of the Allies, and a graduate of the Roberts College in Constantinople, and president of the Unredeemed Greek Societies at Athens. He spoke of the great help that the Greeks have given to the British submarines along the Asia Minor shore and the islands, how the Unredeemed Greeks fought heroically on the Macedonian front and toiled in the French munition factories at Paris. The systematic extermination of the Greek race under the hateful Turkish yoke was described at length, and he expressed the wish of all the enslaved

THE ADVENTURES OF A. AND B.

Chapter I.

The arrival of the school teachers. Once upon a time, two school teachers, whom, for the sake of brevity and mathematical precision, we shall designate as "A" and "B," set out upon a search for experience, knowledge and adventure. The name of the place chosen as their destination has been censored—therefore, as it is an unknown quantity we shall hereafter refer to it as "X."

The time chosen for the opening of this tale is exactly four and one fifth seconds before the arrival of the train at the railway station of X. A and B were standing gazing at several suitcases and vaguely wondering where they were going and if there would be anyone to meet them. By the time they had finished their meditation the train pulled in and a white-haired old man appeared. "How d'ye do," he said; "school ma'ams, I suppose."

"Yes," answered A gravely. "Are you the inspector?"

"I should say not," replied the old man. "Glad to see you anyway. Come on down to the hotel. You've come to a real country this time."

"I'm glad to hear that," exclaimed A feverishly, "but I'd like to see the inspector. Is he in town?"

"Well, not exactly—he's stuck in the mud about two miles north of here. Greeks that they, like any other subject nation, should be united with their mother country."

B. K. Salamis, Sci. '21, spoke of the statistics of the population, and gave some extracts from different English and French writers on Asia Minor, showing the continuity of Hellenism in Asia Minor and civilizing importance that this race will give when their people are freed.

A resolution was sent to all the Allies for their just rights.

DRAWINGS.

On Wednesday, January 15th, the Art Contest for the 1920 Annual closes. The competitors are asked to have all their drawings in by that date, in order that work may be started on the book at once. Competition will be keen, and much new talent employed. The successful contestants will be awarded a copy of the book as soon as it is published. Remember, no drawings will be accepted after Jan. 15th. Drawings are to be left in the Union, addressed to the Annual Board.

R. V. C. NOTES

R.V.C. Glee Club.

The R.V.C. Glee Club met for the first time in the new year on Saturday evening, in the drawing room. Some new music was read through, and although the meeting was not as large as usual, a very profitable and enjoyable hour was spent. The next meeting will be Saturday, January 18th, at 7.30 o'clock. A large attendance is requested.

"Daily" Reporters.

Don't forget that the "Daily" staff is to have the photograph taken for the Annual, at 1.30, to-day, in Notman's studio. Please be on time.

The boys have just gone to pull him out."

By this time A and B and the white-haired gentleman, staggering under the weight of suitcases, containing books, geology, hammers and other such light articles which had been packed in the suitcases simply because they wouldn't fit in the trunks, arrived at the hotel. The luggage was thankfully deposited in the hall, and after taking a rapid survey of the surroundings, and submitting to an inspection from the occupants of the hotel, A and B were finally directed to the drug store, where they were to await the arrival of the inspector.

The telephone operator appeared from the back of the store. "Hello," she said, "are you the new school teachers?"

"Yes," responded A and B, in unison.

"Do you know what districts you're going to?" continued the inquisitive young lady.

"No," chorused the victims of the cross-examination.

"Well," returned the operator, "they phoned in from a German district yesterday. I don't know how you'd like it there. Then there's a French district down south wanting a teacher. They had a row with the last one—they're always fighting with the teachers, 'them soups.' I don't think you'd like that either." A agreed with alacrity and signified her intention of waiting to see the inspector. After being subjected to further questions as to their "home town," extent of travel, previous occupations, and hopes for future occupations, and various other matters, the "school ma'ams" were finally permitted to walk up and down outside while a record was put on the gramophone for their entertainment.

The inspector eventually arrived and announced that he had two districts—one with twenty children and a good boarding-house, the other with fourteen children and not quite so pleasant a boarding-house. A and B tossed for the districts. B won the district with the larger school and was forthwith despatched—with a large amount of "inspectorial" advice—in a Ford. (Her tale will be resumed in the next chapter.)

Having discovered that there were no more Fords available the inspector was forced to conduct A to her abode in person. After motoring for sixteen miles over an Indian reserve, and stopping, incidentally, to "fire" the school teacher of the district, they came in sight of a large barn, which the inspector pointed out as their destination, remarking casually "the house is rather small, but don't get discouraged. You'll get used to it—everyone does."

Editor, McGill Daily,

McGill, Union, Montreal.

Sir,—The sentiments of our fellow-students, according to letters recently appearing in the Daily seem to be reverting to certain events which took place a few weeks ago. The blaze first broke forth when one of the prominent members of Med. '22 published an appeal in these columns urging the students to show more college spirit. He put it quite plainly that there was a lack of pep at sport, that the old Red and White had no one to shout for them at the games. Why should this be, fellows? The war is over! That feeling which once restrained us should be banished. Once it seemed to certain long-faced individuals, who went around with the slogan, "This is no time for levity," that any sign of sport was a crime in these days of war. But the war is over. Let's show them we've got the goods, and get out and back our team at the next game, and yell the good old yell. McGill has a wonderful war record. How about a peace record?

The matter of ping-pong and chess was also discussed in, perhaps, a slightly sarcastic way by another member. But, sarcastic as it may seem, there are those who would have us indulge in that rough sport. However, boys, even although we have apologized (?) for our unpardonable conduct and, incidentally, paid three bucks (the most unkindest cut of all), let's forget all that, and in other ways show them all that there are some he-men at Old McGill.

I thank you, Mr. Editor.

N. COPELAND,
Med. '22.

January 11th, 1919.

To the Editor, McGill Daily.
Dear Sir,—Mr. Gavin Miller's letter in to-day's issue of your paper is so intensely personal that, unless one descends to the realm of the personal, there is nothing to which one may reply.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

Yours, etc.,

C. PETER MACLEAN.

COMMERCIAL USE FOR AEROPLANES

Aircraft Association Discuss Application of Aeroplanes to Commercial Use

Achievements of aeronautics during the war, on the field and in the factory, and the outlook for the commercial use of aeroplanes were discussed at a dinner given in New York by the Manufacturers Aircraft Association, attended by representatives of governmental departments having to do with flying. Many prominent manufacturers and more than a score of army flyers recently returned from service overseas were present at the dinner.

The impression created by the speech-making was that the heroism of the flyers from the United States at the front matched that of the other allies; and that the logical future field for aeronautics lies in commerce, for whose requirements specially designed machines will be perfected, the machines built for war purposes meanwhile being adapted to peace issues.

Development of commercial aviation, it was said, would within the next few years equal or surpass the progress made by aeronautics during the war. One speaker said the first great advance would be the trans-Atlantic flight which, he said, would be made by several machines before the end of another year.

Among the audience sat four army aviators who that very evening had completed a trans-continental flight from San Diego, California, to Mineola, Long Island, in 55 hours of actual flying time. They were Maj. Albert D. Smith, Lieut. Albert Pyle, Lieut. H. C. McLean, Lieut. Robert S. Worthington, with Sergeant Lewis, Sergeant Blanton and Lieut. John M. Evans as passengers.

The same day, also, Maj.-Gen. William L. Kenly, chief of the Federal Bureau of Aeronautics, had flown from Washington to Mineola, to attend the dinner, in an hour and 39 minutes; and five army officers had made the same flight in a new type of Glenn-Martin bombing plane. The trans-continental flying was done in the Curtiss J. N. 4, and Major Kenly was in a specially designed Haviland equipped with a Liberty motor.

John D. Ryan, former director of the Aircraft Production Board, advocated an academy of aeronautics, similar to West Point and Annapolis.

In the light of the recent temporary suspension of the attempt to start the Chicago-New York airline mail, the speech by Otto Praeger, Assistant Postmaster-General, was especially significant. He made it clear that the chief drawback to commercial aviation was the present impossibility of landing planes in small spaces. This was a defect which would be overcome. Until then, the government would continue to salvage such war planes as could be adapted to the mail service.

Order of British Empire For Grads; Others on Committees For Promotion of Soldiers' Re-Establishment in Canada

Colonel Hugh A. Chisholm, Med. '05, Created a C.M.G., and Lt.-Col. T. R. Caldwell and Major J. R. Goodall Become Officers of Order of the British Empire, in Recognition of Their Services—Prof. W. D. Tait and Miss Helen R. Y. Reid Appointed to Assist Director of Soldiers' Repatriation and Employment—Harold E. A. Rose Named Clerk of the Montreal Juvenile Court—Pte. W. C. Common Released from Germany.

Colonel Hugh A. Chisholm, Med. '05, who has just been created a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, has been overseas since 1914, when he left with a unit of the C.A.M.C., as a major. A graduate of St. Francis Xavier's College, Antigonish, N.S., in Arts, Colonel Chisholm's home is at Linwood, N.S., and there he was practising prior to enlistment. In addition to the decoration just conferred upon him, he holds the D.S.O. for gallantry at the front, and has been twice mentioned in despatches.

Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas R. Caldwell, past student, who has been created an Officer of the Order of the British Empire, is in command of the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion at Witley, England. He went overseas as a captain in the 21st Battalion and served in France in 1915 and 1916, being wounded on the 13th of June, 1916. On his return from spending a month's convalescent leave at home the Medical Board in England refused him permission to return to France; he was then placed in the 38th Canadian Reserve. Later there was an amalgamation of the infantry reserve battalion for Eastern Ontario under the name of the 6th Reserve, numbering some five to six thousand men, and Colonel Caldwell has been in command of this reserve for 1917, 1918 and 1919. In the fall of 1918 he was asked to take charge of the segregating of a large number of men coming in from France and Canada, numbering some fifteen thousand. This was by no means an easy undertaking, but he succeeded in getting all plans and preparations made where the men were in their places inside of four days. Col. Caldwell was highly commended for this work by the British General in charge of the Aldershot area, in which district the camp was placed, and also by General Turner, V.C., officer commanding the Canadian Forces in England.

Major James Robert Goodall, Arts '99, Med. '01, a officer of the Canadian Army Medical Corps, created an Officer of the Order of the British Empire, went overseas as captain and medical officer of the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles. He practised in Montreal prior to enlistment, and was assistant professor of gynaecology and lecturer on obstetrics in the Faculty of Medicine. His name was twice brought to the notice of the Secretary of State for War.

Holds the D.S.O. and C.M.G.
Lieut.-Colonel Stratton H. Osler, Sci. '09, created a C.M.G., went overseas in 1915, with the Royal Canadian Engineers, with which he has been since his graduation from the Royal Military College, Kingston. He is a graduate of the Cobourg Collegiate Institute and McGill University, and was previously awarded the Distinguished Service Order for his good work in the field. He went overseas as a major, but his good work on the field soon advanced him to the rank of Lieut.-Col.

Capt. E. B. Savage, past student, who has been awarded the Military Cross in recognition of services in France. He has been prominent in athletic circles and is head of the firm of E. B. Savage & Co., chartered accountants of Montreal. He captained and played with the M.A.A.A. Rugby team for years, being recognized as one of the finest amateur players in the Dominion. In January, 1915, Capt. Savage was given his commission in the Canadian Field Artillery and the following month recruited a draft for his corps. This was raised in Montreal and he sailed with them for England in May. Capt. Savage has had two brothers with him in the service, Major Harold M. Savage, D.S.O., and Lieut. D. L.

Will Aid in Repatriation.

Major William D. Tait, Ph.D., of the Department of Philosophy, has been named chairman of a committee of returned soldiers to assist in the work of repatriation and employment directed by H. J. Daly, of Toronto. Born at Hopewell, N.S., in 1879, he attended the New Glasgow High School, Pieter Academy and Dalhousie University, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts with honors in philosophy in 1905. At Harvard University, whither he proceeded on graduation, Major Tait was Thayer scholar and also Veld scholar. There he took the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. From 1906 to 1907 he was lecturer in philosophy at his alma mater and during his course at Harvard also acted as assistant in the department of philosophy. Since 1909 he has been assistant professor of experimental philosophy at McGill University. Major Tait served in the militia prior to the Great War, and in 1916 offered his services as officer in command of a Siege Battery, to be recruited from among the students of the University. Authority having been granted for the formation of the battery, its ranks were soon filled, and within two months of the commencement of recruiting, it was on its way overseas. The battery is now known as No. 7 Canadian Siege Battery. Major Tait left the unit in England, and some months ago returned to Canada. He has since been on duty at Halifax.

Miss Helen R. Y. Reid, Arts '89, has been appointed to serve on the women's committee engaged in the same task. The function of the advisory committees is to advance the opinions and ideas of the particular branches of the community they represent and to act as consultative bodies.

Clerk of Juvenile Court.

Harold E. A. Rose, Law '17, it is understood, has been appointed to the clerkship of the Montreal Juvenile Court, in succession to Owen Dawson, resigned. Mr. Rose is the son of the Rev. S. P. Rose, formerly of Dominion Methodist Church, Montreal, now of St. Paul's Church, Ottawa. His brother, Prof. H. J. Rose, of McGill, is now with the Khaki University. Mr. Rose, after graduating as a B.A. at Toronto, spent a year at Oxford, and then came to Montreal, where he graduated with the degree of B.C.L.

The death occurred in Montreal recently of Rose Maclean, widow of David Burke, and mother of Capt. E. A. Burke, Law '00.
It is announced that Lt.-Col. Robert Innes, Agr. '11, who, for the last year has been in charge of Ontario land settlement work at Kapuskasing, has been appointed director of agricultural training by the Dominion Soldiers' Land Settlement Board. Col. Innes has been acting in an advisory capacity for the board for some time, and only recently made a tour of the western province and interviewed many veterans and called on G. W. V. A. branches, so that he might get a consensus of opinion on things which might be considered necessary in the administration of the present Act.

HOW?
The way to "build a bond" with W-S.S. is to buy regularly—one a day, or one a week, or one a month—whatever your means will permit.
Those who cannot invest $4.00 at a time acquire War-Savings Stamps in exchange for Thrift Cards to which are affixed 16 Thrift Stamps costing 25 cents each.

WHY?

There will be a meeting of the Union House Committee, this afternoon, at 5.30 o'clock.

HARVARD ATHLETICS ARE SHORT OF MONEY

Will Probably Meet Yale on Charles River Basin this Year

If Harvard University is to meet Yale University on the Charles River Basin in June, instead of over the Thames River four-mile course that pre-war races were rowed on, it will be chiefly on account of a desire to cut down crew expenses, which must be done this year, or money secured from sources other than the Harvard Athletic Association for rowing.

It is plainly understood that Harvard athletics this spring are not starting with the $100,000 or more profits that a football season turns in. Since 1916, when Yale treated the Crimson to a 6-to-3 defeat, Harvard has not had any athletic team that has even approached paying its expenses. Such being the case, the amount of money Harvard has to spend for spring athletics will be small in comparison to other years, and therefore sports of all forms will have to submit to a ruthless cutting of expenses.

Both Harvard and Yale have maintained sumptuous rowing quarters along the Thames for a number of years. There, both crews would betake themselves about the first of June, likewise the freshman squads, and a big bill of expense piled up before the crews would meet three weeks or so later in their annual regatta. Special quarters, special food, a chef and retinue, proctors for the examination of the game, and other sundry expenses would soon mount into the thousands. And crew, known as a gentleman's sport, hardly draws a gentleman's financial returns at Harvard, for the sustenance of university rowing in its last pre-war season alone cost $21,750.67, and the total crew expense was more than $31,000. The receipts were only one-sixth of the total expenditure.

The Harvard-Yale race on the Charles, if it is arranged, may be the feature of the big regatta, with one or two other college crews, and neighboring private and high school crews entered. Events for single and double sculls, and other numbers will be on the programme.

It is very doubtful if Harvard meets Cornell this spring. Relations were temporarily severed last year, and there is little chance of a renewal of them this year. There is a very good chance that Princeton and the Crimson will meet, for from now on Harvard, Yale and the Tigers intend to participate triangularly in all sorts of athletics. Whether Harvard, on the other hand, will care to go to Princeton for the regatta after making this trip at least two years in succession, is quite another thing, but that angle will first be taken up by the advisory rowing committee, of which R. F. Herrick, the 1915 graduate coach, is the chairman. The university and freshman candidates will have Coach Haines' services from 2 until 5 o'clock daily, except Saturdays and Sundays, but the work will be of a voluntary order until April 15, when the regular call for men will be made.

A big mass meeting for freshmen interested in crew will be held. The speakers will be Coach Haines, Bart- (Continued on Page 2.)

BIBLE STUDY.

A large attendance of the Bible Classes, at the Hall, is solicited for to-night. Prof. Reilly is having a special speaker, in the person of Principal Fraser, address his class of First Year Meds., and he wishes a full attendance, as they are sure to get something good.

First Year Science meets at 5 p.m., and then have supper after.

Dr. Gordon will meet the Third Year group and continue his talks on the Old Testament.

The other classes meet at usual time. All who have enrolled, be sure and come and give your class a chance to have the highest percentage attendance of those enrolled.

RETURNED SCIENTISTS TO MEET.

During the week, a meeting was held by some of the returned men in Applied Science, and it was decided to call a meeting for Monday, at 5 p.m., in Room 33, Engineering Building, of all returned men in Applied Science who have been overseas in either the Canadian or Imperial Forces. It is proposed to form a society similar to that the "Meds" have formed.

A large attendance is particularly desired, so that the society may be formed, and when the large number of Applied Science undergrads now overseas return they may receive an organized welcome, and at once will feel at home in the Faculty.

How They Died

Lieut. G. N. D. Ott.

George Nugent Dickson Ott, Lieut. G. N. D. Ott, was born on February 10, 1885, at Hampton, N.B., the eldest son of G. Q. Dickson Ott, K.C., of Hampton. He was educated at Rothesay College School 1897-1903, and at McGill 1903-1907, when he was graduated. At the time war was declared he was a lieutenant in the 8th "Princess Louise's Regiment, of New Brunswick Hussars," and when the 6th Regiment Canadian Mounted Rifles was being raised in February, 1915, he was given a lieutenancy in that corps, and posted to A Squadron. In June, 1915, he left Valcartier with his regiment for England, and in October, 1915, went with the regiment to France. The first and second brigades of C.M.R. were dismounted and served as infantry. The strength of a mounted regiment being less than that of an infantry battalion, the 3rd Regiment of the First Brigade and the 6th Regiment of the Second Brigade (the junior regiments of these brigades) were broken up on 1st January, 1916, and the men and some of the officers distributed to the two remaining regiments of their brigades, in order to bring them up to infantry strength. Mr. Ott became, under the new organization, a lieutenant in the 5th C.M.R., and thereafter served with that corps on Ypres salient until he was killed in action in the defence of Maple Copse, late in the evening of 2nd June, 1916, during the third German attack in force on the Ypres salient.

Through the almost continuous fighting on that front Lieut. Ott performed the ordinary war-time regimental duties of a subaltern officer, and in the spring of 1916, was appointed brigade works officer for the 4th and 5th C.M.R., and his performance of important duties won high commendation from his Colonel (Baker), and the Brigadier-General.

On the morning of 2nd June, 1916, when the third battle of Ypres began, A, C and half of B Companies of the 5th Canadian Rifles were holding Maple Copse, and the strong points in advance of it. Later in the day D Company, under Captain Roscoe, with Mr. Ott as second-in command, was sent up to reinforce the other companies of the regiment, and succeeded in getting through the intense German barrage, reaching Maple Copse about one p.m. Later Captain Roscoe was wounded and Mr. Ott took command. In describing the German bombardment, an officer of the 5th C.M.R. says there were times during the bombardment that a shell did not burst in

B. W. & F. CLUB.

There will be no practice of the B. W. & F. Club to-night. Watch notice in Daily for next practice.

Maple Copse, and that it was miraculous that the whole regiment was not actually annihilated. The casualties of this regiment show how desperate was the struggle, of the officers all but two were killed or wounded, of the rank and file of A, C and D Companies and half of B Company only 45 answered roll-call when the regiment was relieved, the rest being killed or too badly wounded to fall in. The 5th C.M.R., however, held their position, although as Lord Beaverbrook says in "Canada in Flanders"—"Maple Copse, held by the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, was so heavily shelled that the whole wood was smashed flat."

The following extracts are from letters written after the battle, three from Mr. Ott's brother officers of the 5th C.M.R. and the last from the former Chaplain, of the 6th C.M.R.

"I cannot hope to be able to write anything to alleviate your sorrow, but I hope a few lines about George and what we all think of him will help a little. George died a hero on June 2nd. He was at the head of his men and continually moving about among them to give them confidence, and to see that the wounded were looked after, as well as possible. I have known George since February, 1915, and have always found him the same, a splendid fellow and a great personal friend. I hope it will be some comfort to you that he died a good soldier's death. I wish I could write what my heart feels."

"It is useless for me to try to write what I want to say; you might like to know though that dear George died the idol of his men, amidst a very hell of shell fire."

"He died a glorious death and was perfectly wonderful in the fight."

"I have seen several of his men pass through this hospital and the keenest regret has been expressed by them at his death; they simply loved him and would follow him anywhere. Fair, impartial, self sacrificing always, he has helped to make his impression on the lads."
